REAR ADMIRAL BYRD BACK TO CIVILIZATION

NEW ZEALAND GIVES HIM A FINE RECEPTION

STURDY SHIP PLAINLY SHOWS
BATTERING OF ICE, RAV-AGES OF WIND

BYRD'S MEN LOOK HARD AND
DUNEDIN

Dunedin, N. Z., March 10.—(U.P.)—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, with the weather-hardened crew of his history-making Antarctic expedition, came back to civilization today to be greeted by the most tumultuous reception New Zealand has ever accorded to a world hero.

His sturdy ship, the City of New York, plainly showing the battering of ice and ravages of wind, gave eloquent testimony to the ravages of a year at the ice-barrier and its battle through the fies on the return trip.

Byrd's men, also giving evidence in their faces of the rigorous Antarctic weather, looked hard and fit as they joyfully came ashore to the deafening shouts of Dunedin's population and the shriek of ship sirens. Despite their year at the bottom of the world, a majority of them had gained weight.

"The explorer's first words were to express his gratitude to the people of New Zealand for their assistance in the expedition. After that he discussed with the United Press the high points of his plunge into the South Pole region and the success of his air-plane and dogged exploration.

The American expedition owes a great debt of gratitude to New Zealand, which was a great factor in its success, the admiral said.

Fellowship with Great Britain, he added, is one of his ideals, therefore he hopes the contact established will assist in fostering a mutual feeling of admiration between the two countries.

The great courtesy and limitless kindness with which he was received, both when he made New Zealand his base and when he returned today, Admiral Byrd views as an omen of the continued willingness of the British empire and the American republic to "play the game" together.

He was moved deeply and intensely gratified by Dunedin's outpouring of welcome.

Byrd's actual flight over the South Pole, he said, was to his mind secondary in importance to the discovery of hundreds of miles of new territory east of the Ross dependency. This territory, he pointed out, was outside of the limits of the dependency.

"Personally," he said, "I am not the least concerned with claiming the land for America. I merely continued the work begun by British pioneers, and all I have done was to touch on the fringe of a subject which would bear the study of generations to come.

"I have named it Marie Byrd Land, but it is not American; it rather belongs to the world.

"I have accomplished my entire mission and owing to good fortune exceeded all my expectations. This is solely due to the devotion and energy of the men, all of whom worked seriously.

"The results of this expedition to science can not be estimated at present, but geology, biology, meteorology, physics and the science of radio all should benefit.

"An interesting point for the scientists was that I was using my own sun compass, designed on a pattern of Burnstead's model of 1925. I didn't use Amundsen's instruments because I didn't know they existed. I found my Arctic experience, although valuable, inadequate for southern conditions. There was a lot to learn because the Antarctic is wholly unlike the Arctic. It is in the grip of an ice age similar to that which held Europe in its thrall, 30,000 years ago."

A cold, chilling rain, accompanied by a stiff southerly wind, drove in with the returned explorers as the City of New York and the supply ship, Eleanor Bolling, sailed up the harbor, escorted by all manner of welcoming craft.

The official party was transferred to the City of New York as Byrd's ship entered the harbor. They found everything bustling on deck and aloft, where the men were making the boat shipshape and furling sail.

The City of New York hardly was recognizable as the trim, freshly painted ship that left this port more than a year ago. Most of the paint had gone, and her sides were dented and scarred. The Eleanor Bolling also carried the brand of the polar regions.

FOREST HILLS INN RAIDED BY DRY AGENTS SUNDAY

New York, March 10.—(U.P.)—The fashionable Forest Hills Inn, a favorite rendezvous for tennis celebrities during the tournament season at Forest Hills, L. I., has joined the list of hostilities in the metropolitan area that have been raided by prohibition agents. A squad of dry agents visited the inn yesterday and seized what they said were five barrels of beer and a quantity of whiskey. Louis Fodorfer, manager, and nine employees were arrested.

4 SIOUXS DEAD FROM DRINKING ALCOHOL POISON

INDUSTRIAL PREPARATION USED

FREEZE SOLUTION

ONE INDIAN HELD ON CHARGES OF STEALING SOLUTION FROM
TOKIO, N. D., STORE

Devils Lake, N. D., March 10.—(U.P.)—Four Sioux Indians were dead and three others moaned in anguish on hospital cots today from drinking industrial alcohol, used by the white man as an anti-freeze solution for cold weather motoring.

The dead are Francis Bazett, 28, Mike Goodhouse, 24, Jerome Onehouse, 28, and Jerome Albert, 24.

Matthias Taylor, another member of the tribe, was held on charges of stealing the poisonous liquor from a general store at Tokio. He was said to have taken the alcohol to a dance Saturday night at which an epidemic of poisonings broke out.

Hospital attendants said the most critically ill today were three young braves, William Wantanan, 20; George Mars, 20, and Francis Demars, 19, the Beau Brummels of the Fort Totten Indian reservation. James Jackson, another guest at the dance, was missing.

Four of the victims died within a few hours and little hope was held for the recovery of the three young men. Physicians who were called to the dance found several of the Indians in death agony and many others ill.

C. O. Gray, supervisor of the reservation, was assisted in the investigation today by Dr. A. K. Blair, Benson county coroner, and W. G. McDonald, state's attorney.

County authorities today said Taylor had stolen only one gallon of alcohol, all of which was taken to the dance. The fatal party began Friday at the home of O. A. Coates, near Tokio, and lasted until medical aid was summoned for the stricken men.

As none of the others were seriously ill, authorities believed only eight of the guests drank the poison solution. Taylor last was seen riding a horse away from the Coates home. He was said to have been nearly insensibly intoxicated.

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

London, March 10.—The United States, Japanese and British delegations to the naval conference were understood today to be agreed in principle on their respective naval quotas, although no actual agreement had yet been signed.

Both American and British sources indicated the negotiations had progressed satisfactorily. The reported plan would give Japan an approximate 70 per cent ratio in cruiser strength by 1936 as compared to Britain and America, providing the United States does not lay down her last three 10,000-ton cruisers (which have been authorized) until the years 1933, 1934 and 1935.

In reality, however, Japan would have a ratio of 60 per cent in tonnage and 66 per cent in number of ships, which was the proposition advanced to the Japanese by Secretary Henry L. Stimson in conversations in Washington. The 60 per cent tonnage and 66 per cent number ratios would prevail after the United States has built the last three cruisers.

DISASTER OCCURRED IN AUDI-TORIUM AT FUFAN,
KOREA

Fufan, Korea, March 10.—(U.P.)—A naptha explosion and fire wrecked the auditorium of the Chinkai naval station today and took the lives of scores of persons, most of them school children, attending a motion picture showing there.

The death toll was placed at 104 although it was impossible to check accurately in the confusion and panic.

In addition to the dead there were four seriously injured. Most of the victims were burned to death when flames spread with great rapidity after the explosion.

There were 134 school children of primary class age in the building. They had gone to the auditorium to see a special motion picture show, and the excited crowd became panic stricken by the blast and flames.

The tragedy came in the midst of elaborate ceremonies throughout Japan in observance of the 25th anniversary of the Japanese victory in the war with Russia.

1,200 PATIENTS IN INSANE HOSPITAL FIRE ARE SAVED

SAFETY

CUPOLA OF JACKSONVILLE IN-SANE ASYLUM DESTROYED
BY FIRE

Jacksonville, Ill., March 10.—Twelve hundred patients in the administration building of the state hospital for the insane marched quietly to safety today when fire destroyed the cupola of the structure.

Three persons, all attendants, were the only ones injured. They were cut by flying glass.

Alarm bells sounded throughout the building when the fire was discovered in the cupola, which is not used. Attendants marshalled the inmates into line and as the fire crackled over their heads marched them outside to safety.

About half of the 1,200 were women. Damage was estimated at $50,000.

PRISON DOORS OPEN FOR DR. F. A. COOK

Leavenworth, Kan., March 10.—(U.P.)—A new night interne in the big penitentiary today experienced his first day of trying to sleep.

He is taking the place of Dr. Frederick A. Cook, author, lecturer and explorer, who yesterday walked through the big door of the penitentiary a free man. Cook, one of the most famous men ever to be given a number and "dressed in" at this prison, has for the past four years been night interne in the prison hospital.

When the prison door swung open it was another climax in the life of the 65 year old man, a life which has been filled with unusual adventures and experiences. Prison life, however, has mellowed Cook and his exit was quiet and orderly.

DENOUNCE RELIGIOUS PERSECUTIONS IN SOVIET RUSSIA

Washington, March 10.—(U.P.)—Religious persecutions in Soviet Russia were denounced bitterly last night as 4,000 members of various religious sects met in Constitution hall for a formal protest meeting. Six communists, three of them girls and all under 21 years of age, were arrested outside the hall for distributing handbills to the gathering upholding the atheistic program of the Soviet Union. All were representatives of the "Communist party, U. S. A., Washington section."

Washington, March 10.—(U.P.)—Opening of the bribery trial of Edward L. Doheny, millionaire oil man, today was postponed until Wednesday by Judge William Hitz, on account of the death of William Howard Taft.

WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT

CHICAGO CHURCH MEMBERS PRAY FOR THEIR CITY

SEEK A "CRIMELESS CHICAGO,"
BUT BANDITS STILL PLY
VOCATION

IN PAST 48 HOURS THERE WERE
14 SHOOTINGS, 34 ROBBERIES
AND ONE MURDER

Chicago, March 10.—(U.P.)—While thousands of church members prayed for a "crimeless Chicago" over the week-end, bandits and gunmen were busy throughout the metropolitan area, the police blotters revealed today.

In the 48 hours ending this morning, 14 shootings, 34 robberies and one murder went into the records. Almost 1,000 arrests were made in the usual week-end crime drive.

Added to the crime figures was the uncovering of a kidnaping plot against a wealthy Gold Coast insurance man, a spectacular chase in the near north-side in which one of Tex Guinan's chorus girls figured, the attempt of gunmen to seize payroll records wanted by the state's attorney's office for graft investigation purposes and the accidental shooting of one policeman by another in a saloon.

In more than 1,000 churches yesterday ministers offered prayers that Chicago voters rise and wipe corruption and crime off the city's record by registering and voting at the coming primaries. The prayers were called by the church federation of which Dean Shailer Mathews, of the University of Chicago is president, and was joined in by Bishop William P. McConnell of the Methodist church. The federation estimated that almost 2,000,000 church members prayed for the city's deliverance.

Three men and Miss Dolly Wahl, a chorus girl, were captured today after they led a police squad a long chase back and forth over the near north-side. Police fired at the speeding automobile in which the four rode and the occupants fired back, coming to a halt only when a collision was imminent at Madison and Clark, in the heart of the loop. A pistol was found in the car and a box of shotgun shells in a pocket of the tonneau.

Robert Haverkamp, a policeman, was accidentally shot in a saloon by Leo Horn, another park policeman, when they were examining their pistols after drinking a bottle of gin.

The one murder came when a watchman was killed defending the public works department payroll against two gunmen.

Several days ago State's Attorney Swanson launched an investigation into the department of public works, scenting padded payrolls and graft. The records were kept in a garage on the southwest side, guarded by Thos. Coughlin, a watchman.

Yesterday two gunmen menaced Coughlin with automatic pistols and demanded the documents. Coughlin resisted and was shot. He died last night in a hospital.

Assistant State's Attorney Harold M. Keele, one of those Swanson assigned to investigate the public works department, said today he had definitely linked Coughlin's murder with the investigation. He said the records in the garage showed that Charles E. Patterson, owner of the garage where the records were stored, had been drawing $4,000 a month from the city public works department.

The 13 in all facing charges of kidnaping for ransom, a crime that is punishable by death in Illinois, included Mrs. Myrtle Gorman Resnick, former wife of the victim, Theodore Kopelman, who said he was seized, blindfolded, taken to a cabin just over the line into Wisconsin, threatened with torture and finally arranged for his abductors to get $4,000 from his attorney.

The kidnaping occurred Feb. 28 but the trap which netted the 13 was not sprung until late Saturday when Kopelman advanced the final $1,000.

Last night when the 13 were paraded before Kopelman for identification, he recognized Mrs. Resnick, who until March last year was his wife. She also is a widow of Pete Gusenberg, one of the seven St. Valentine's Day massacre victims.

MADE FOR WRONG HOUSE AND IS ARRESTED BY COPS

Milwaukee, Wis., March 10.—(U.P.)—Nels Nelson, shoes in hand, was climbing through a window when two policemen appeared and accused him as being a burglar.

Nels laughed long and loud.

"The joke's on you," he chuckled. "I live here."

The police knocked and a woman appeared.

"Does this man live here?" one of them queried.

"Never saw him before," the woman said.

The police laughed longer and louder. Then Nels looked at the house number. It was 2516. He lived at 2512.

Today the police still laughed and Nels moaned in a cell, charged with being drunk and disorderly.

FIRE TRAPS TWO WOMEN IN BURNING APARTMENT HOUSE

Memphis, Tenn., March 10.—(U.P.)—Fire that trapped them in their apartment house room today caused the death of two young women and minor injuries to another person.

The victims were identified as Faith Beckley, 30, and Myrtle Cora Brewster, 22. The fire started on the ground floor in the rear of the two story apartment and spread quickly to cut off escape of the girls.

AFFLICTION PREVALENT IN OK-LAHOMA CITY PROVES TO BE A MYSTERY

RENDERS HANDS AND FEET OF
ITS VICTIMS PRACTICALLY
USELESS

Oklahoma City, March 10.—(U.P.)—The cause of an affliction involving about 400 persons suffering from a strange paralysis became more of a mystery today.

Fear that the malady might be some epidemic form was expressed when a series of tests of Jamaica ginger by City Chemist Clifford failed to reveal a trace of poison. Authorities had blamed the ginger for the sudden illness that rendered the hands and feet of its victims useless.

Health Director Walter Miles Furth continued to discount reports that a form of spinal meningitis was the cause of the illness. He said that all spinal fluid tests have been negative.

Physicians were inclined to believe the death of a four-year-old adopted daughter of Andrew Roberts early Sunday was not attributable to the same causes although symptoms of her illness were identical with those of the supposed poison ginger victims. Her legs became paralyzed and she died in convulsions.

Johnson City, Tenn., March 10.—More than 50 cases of partial paralysis believed by one health officer to be caused by drinking poisonous liquor, brought an investigation by the state health department in this section today.

ADVISES FACTIONS TO SETTLE THEIR MANY DIFFERENCES

GOV. THEODORE CHRISTIANSON

MODERN WOODMEN

INSURANCE COMMISSIONER TO HEAR NEW COMPLAINTS
MADE

St. Paul, March 10.—(U.P.)—Governor Theodore Christianson today advised controversial factions in the Modern Woodmen of America to settle their differences before the fraternal insurance organization is disrupted.

The controversy caused by adoption of rate increases for insurance, Governor Christianson said, threatens to break up the entire organization.

In a letter to A. R. Talbot, of Lincoln, Neb., chief counsel of the organization, Governor Christianson said he believed dissension of some members was caused by the means used to adopt the rate increase, rather than the increase itself.

"Many I urge you to adopt a policy of moderation and call in some of the leaders among those opposed to the present administration program for a conference," the governor wrote.

"I am writing you as a member of the organization anxious that it be preserved as a means of protection to more than 1,000,000 American homes."

Carlfield W. Brown, state insurance commissioner, will conduct a hearing Friday on a complaint by members opposed to the rate increase and seeking to present further writing of insurance by the organization in Minnesota.

84,000 DISABLED VETERANS ARE IN NEED OF RELIEF

Washington, March 10.—(U.P.)—Eighty-four thousand disabled veterans of the world war are in urgent need of relief provided in the new veterans' committee omnibus bill, pending in the house, National Commander O. L. Bodenhamer of the American Legion said today in a statement urging immediate passage of the measure.

DID MUCH TO MOULD COURSE OF ITS HISTORY

TO BE BURIED AMONG NATION'S
NOTABLES IN ARLINGTON
CEMETERY

OFFICIAL MOURNING PERIOD OF
30 DAYS PROCLAIMED BY
PRES. HOOVER

Washington, March 10.—(U.P.)—The nation prepared today to pay final and full tribute to William Howard Taft, who as president and chief justice did much to mould the course of its history and development in recent years.

To the clatter of cavalry, the body of the statesmen and jurist will be borne with full military honors tomorrow to the capitol, where he was so long a familiar figure on the supreme court bench, there to lie in state in the rotunda under the great white dome. Afterward, he will be taken to the heights of Arlington, across the Potomac, and buried among other of the nation's notables in the great national cemetery which overlooks Washington.

The government paused today in its activities in respect to the former president. The supreme court over which he presided closed its doors, adjourned by its 89-year-old dean, Associate Justice Holmes, at noon. Congress, likewise, suspended its business for the day.

Over the White House the flag was at half staff, which occurs only upon death of a president. An official mourning period of 30 days, during which all White House social functions have been cancelled, was proclaimed by President Hoover.

President and Mrs. Hoover, associates of the supreme court, cabinet members and other high officials will attend the funeral services at All Souls Unitarian church here at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon and follow the sorrowful procession across the Potomac and up the winding road which leads among thousands of monuments to the illustrious dead.

Calvin Coolidge, the only surviving ex-president, also is expected to attend the funeral with Mrs. Coolidge.

Today, distinguished friends continued to call at the home on Wyoming Avenue where the former president and chief justice lies in death, to comfort his widow. She was reported to be bearing up well under her grief.

A unique honor will be paid the former president in laying his body in state in the capitol. Only presidents who have died in office have have hitherto had this recognition.

Mr. Taft will share this honor with Lincoln, Garfield and Harding and the Unknown Soldier. Harding was the last to lie in the capitol. He received the homage of thousands of citizens who passed in a continual line before his casket on a humid, sweltering August day in 1923.

The body will lie in state from 9 A. M. until noon. After the family and close friends have passed, the great doors will be thrown open to the public. The casket will be carried into the rotunda by four non-commissioned men of the army and four from the navy. A guard of honor consisting of 10 navy and 10 marine corps enlisted men will be detailed at the capitol.

The full military character of the final ceremonies for the dead ex-president will become manifest when at noon an escort comprised of detachments from surrounding posts, war veterans and others will parade down Pennsylvania Avenue to the capitol and escort the body to All Souls Unitarian church for the funeral service by Dr. G. B. Pierce, who was Taft's pastor.

The services will be broadcast from 1:40 to 2:35 o'clock, justices of the supreme court will act as honorary pallbearers.

As the nation paid homage to the former chief justice, the body of Associate Justice Edward Terry Sanford, who died Saturday morning, was nearing Knoxville, Tenn., where it will be interred today.

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, March 10.—Numerous incidents illustrating William Howard Taft's geniality and good humor, and at least one showing he exercised these same qualities when it was not politic to do so, were retold by old friends today.

One of Mrs. Taft's favorite stories is based on the school boy expression, "It'll be a cold day in August," when something improbable happens.

When Mr. Taft was inaugurated president, one of the worst blizzards in the capital's history blew up.

"Well, well," said the outgoing President Roosevelt, "this isn't a regular storm. As soon as I am out where I can do further harm to the constitution, it will cease."

"You're wrong, Theodore," said Mr. Taft. "It is my storm. I always said it would be a cold day when I got to be president."

Even during the disastrous presidential campaign of 1908, when the weather was so cold that the horses of the campaign wagon froze, Mr. Taft said:

PERSECUTIONS IN SOVIET RUSSIA

Washington, March 10. — (U.P.) — Religious persecutions in Soviet Russia were denounced bitterly last night as 4,000 members of various religious sects met in Constitution hall for a formal protest meeting. Six communists, three of them girls and all under 21 years of age, were arrested outside the hall for distributing handbills to the gathering upholding the atheistic program of the Soviet Union. All were representatives of the "Communist party, U. S. A., Washington section."

Washington, March 10. — (U.P.) — Opening of the bribery trial of Edward L. Doheny, millionaire oil man, today was postponed until Wednesday by Judge William Hitz, on account of the death of William Howard Taft.

CHICAGO CHURCH
MEMBERS PRAY
FOR THEIR CITYSEEK A "CRIMELESS CHICAGO,"
BUT BANDITS STILL PLY
VIOLENCEIN PAST 48 HOURS THERE WERE
14 SHOOTINGS, 34 ROBBERIES
AND ONE MURDER

Chicago, March 10. — While thousands of church members prayed for a "crimeless Chicago" over the week-end, bandits and gunmen were busy throughout the metropolitan area, the police blotters revealed today.

In the 48 hours ending this morning, 14 shootings, 34 robberies and one murder went into the records. Almost 1,000 arrests were made in the usual week-end crime drive.

Added to the crime figures was the uncovering of a kidnapping plot against a wealthy Gold Coast insurance man, a spectacular chase in the near north-side in which one of Tex Guinan's chorus girls figured, the attempt of gunmen to seize payroll records wanted by the state's attorney's office for graft investigation purposes and the accidental shooting of one policeman by another in a saloon.

In more than 1,000 churches yesterday ministers offered prayers that Chicago voters rise and wipe corruption and crime off the city's record by registering and voting at the coming primaries. The prayers were called by the church federation of which Dean Shailer Mathews, of the University of Chicago is president, and was joined in by Bishop William P. McConnell of the Methodist church. The federation estimated that almost 2,000,000 church members prayed for the city's deliverance.

Three men and Miss Dolly Wahl, a chorus girl, were captured today after they led a police squad a long chase back and forth over the near north-side. Police fired at the speeding automobile in which the four rode and the occupants fired back, coming to a halt only when a collision was imminent at Madison and Clark, in the heart of the loop. A pistol was found in the car and a box of shotgun shells in a pocket of the tonneau.

Robert Haverkamp, a policeman, was accidentally shot in a saloon by Leo Horn, another park policeman, when they were examining their pistols after drinking a bottle of gin.

The one murder came when a watchman was killed defending the public works department payroll against two gunmen.

Several days ago State's Attorney Swanson launched an investigation into the department of public works, seeking padded payrolls and graft. The records were kept in a garage on the southwest side, guarded by Thos. Coughlin, a watchman.

Yesterday two gunmen menaced Coughlin with automatic pistols and demanded the documents. Coughlin resisted and was shot. He died last night in a hospital.

Assistant State's Attorney Harold M. Keele, one of those Swanson assigned to investigate the public works department, said today he had definitely linked Coughlin's murder with the investigation. He said the records in the garage showed that Charles E. Patterson, owner of the garage where the records were stored, had been drawing $4,000 a month from the city public works department.

The 13 in all facing charges of kidnapping for ransom, a crime that is punishable by death in Illinois, included Mrs. Myrtle Gorman Resnick, former wife of the victim, Theodore Kopelman, who said he was seized, blindfolded, taken to a cabin just over the line into Wisconsin, threatened with torture and finally arranged for his abductors to get $4,000 from his attorney.

The kidnapping occurred Feb. 28 but the trap which netted the 13 was not sprung until late Saturday when Kopelman advanced the final $1,000.

Last night when the 13 were paraded before Kopelman for identification, he recognized Mrs. Resnick, who until March last year was his wife. She also is a widow of Pete Gusenberg, one of the seven St. Valentine's Day massacre victims.

MADE FOR WRONG
HOUSE AND IS ARRESTED BY COPS

Milwaukee, Wis., March 10. — (U.P.) — Nels Nelson, shoes in hand, was climbing through a window when two policemen appeared and accused him as being a burglar.

Nels laughed long and loud. "The joke's on you," he chuckled. "I live here."

The police knocked and a woman appeared. "Does this man live here?" one of them queried.

"Never saw him before," the woman said.

The police laughed longer and louder. Then Nels looked at the house number. It was 2516. He lived at 2512. Today the police still laughed and Nels moaned in a cell, charged with being drunk and disorderly.

FIRE TRAPS TWO WOMEN IN BURNING
APARTMENT HOUSE

Memphis, Tenn., March 10. — (U.P.) — Fire that trapped them in their apartment house room today caused the death of two young women and minor injuries to another person.

The victims were identified as Faith Beckley, 30, and Myrtle Cora Brewer, 22. The fire started on the ground floor in the rear of the two story apartment and spread quickly to cut off escape of the girls.

STRANGE CASE OF

ABOUT 400 PERSONSAFFLICTION PREVALENT IN OK-LAHOMA CITY PROVES TO BE A MYSTERYRENDERS HANDS AND FEET OF
ITS VICTIMS PRACTICALLY
USELESS

Oklahoma City, March 10. — (U.P.) — The cause of an affliction involving about 400 persons suffering from a strange paralysis became more of a mystery today.

Fear that the malady might be some epidemic form was expressed when a series of tests of Jamaica ginger by City Chemist Clifford failed to reveal a trace of poison. Authorities had blamed the ginger for the sudden illness that rendered the hands and feet of its victims useless.

Health Director Walter Miles Furth continued to discount reports that a form of spinal meningitis was the cause of the illness. He said that all spinal fluid tests have been negative.

Physicians were inclined to believe the death of a four-year-old adopted daughter of Andrew Roberts early Sunday was not attributable to the same causes although symptoms of her illness were identical with those of the supposed poison ginger victims. Her legs became paralyzed and she died in convulsions.

Johnson City, Tenn., March 10. — More than 50 cases of partial paralysis believed by one health officer to be caused by drinking poisonous liquor, brought an investigation by the state health department in this section today.

ADVISES FACTIONS TO SETTLE THEIR
MANY DIFFERENCESGOV. THEODORE CHRISTIANSON SPEAKS IN REGARD TO MODERN WOODMENINSURANCE COMMISSIONER TO HEAR NEW COMPLAINTS
MADE

St. Paul, March 10. — (U.P.) — Governor Theodore Christianson today advised controversial factions in the Modern Woodmen of America to settle their differences before the fraternal insurance organization is disrupted.

The controversy caused by adoption of rate increases for insurance, Governor Christianson said, threatens to break up the entire organization.

In a letter to A. R. Talbot, of Lincoln, Neb., chief counsel of the organization, Governor Christianson said he believed dissension of some members was caused by the means used to adopt the rate increase, rather than the increase itself.

"Many I urge you to adopt a policy of moderation and call in some of the leaders among those opposed to the present administration program for a conference," the governor wrote. "I am writing you as a member of the organization anxious that it be preserved as a means of protection to more than 1,000,000 American homes."

Garfield W. Brown, state insurance commissioner, will conduct a hearing Friday on a complaint by members opposed to the rate increase and seeking to present further writing of insurance by the organization in Minnesota.

Washington, March 10. — (U.P.) — Eighty-four thousand disabled veterans of the world war are in urgent need of relief provided in the new veterans' committee omnibus bill, pending in the house, National Commander O. L. Bodenhamer of the American Legion said today in a statement urging immediate passage of the measure.

DID MUCH TO MOULD COURSE
OF ITS HISTORYTO BE BURIED AMONG NATION'S
NOTABLES IN ARLINGTON
CEMETERYOFFICIAL MOURNING PERIOD OF
30 DAYS PROCLAIMED BY
PRES. HOOVER

Washington, March 10. — (U.P.) — The nation prepared today to pay final and full tribute to William Howard Taft, who as president and chief justice did much to mould the course of its history and development in recent years. To the clatter of cavalry, the body of the statesmen and jurist will be borne with full military honors tomorrow to the capitol, where he was so long a familiar figure on the supreme court bench, there to lie in state in the rotunda under the great white dome. Afterward, he will be taken to the heights of Arlington, across the Potomac, and buried among other of the nation's notables in the great national cemetery which overlooks Washington.

The government paused today in its activities in respect to the former president. The supreme court over which he presided closed its doors, adjourned by its 89-year-old dean, Associate Justice Holmes, at noon. Congress, likewise, suspended its business for the day.

Over the White House the flag was at half staff, which occurs only upon death of a president. An official mourning period of 30 days, during which all White House social functions have been cancelled, was proclaimed by President Hoover.

President and Mrs. Hoover, associates of the supreme court, cabinet members and other high officials will attend the funeral services at All Souls Unitarian church here at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon and follow the sorrowful procession across the Potomac and up the winding road which leads among thousands of monuments to the illustrious dead.

Calvin Coolidge, the only surviving ex-president, also is expected to attend the funeral with Mrs. Coolidge.

Today, distinguished friends continued to call at the home on Wyoming Avenue where the former president and chief justice lies in death, to comfort his widow. She was reported to be bearing up well under her grief.

A unique honor will be paid the former president in laying his body in state in the capitol. Only presidents who have died in office have hitherto had this recognition.

Mr. Taft will share this honor with Lincoln, Garfield and Harding and the Unknown Soldier. Harding was the last to lie in the capitol. He received the homage of thousands of citizens who passed in a continual line before his casket on a humid, sweltering August day in 1923.

The body will lie in state from 9 A. M. until noon. After the family and close friends have passed, the great doors will be thrown open to the public. The casket will be carried into the rotunda by four non-commissioned men of the army and four members of the navy. A guard of honor consisting of 10 navy and 10 marine corps enlisted men will be detailed at the capitol.

The full military character of the final ceremonies for the dead ex-president will become manifest when at noon an escort comprised of detachments from surrounding posts, war veterans and others will parade down Pennsylvania Avenue to the capitol and escort the body to All Souls Unitarian church for the funeral service by Dr. G. R. Pierce, who was Taft's pastor.

The services will be broadcast from 1:40 to 2:35 o'clock, justices of the supreme court will act as honorary pallbearers.

As the nation paid homage to the former chief justice, the body of Associate Justice Edward Terry Sanford, who died Saturday morning, was nearing Knoxville, Tenn., where it will be interred today.

Washington, March 10. — Numerous incidents illustrating William Howard Taft's geniality and good humor, and at least one showing he exercised these same qualities when it was not politic to do so, were retold by old friends today.

One of Mrs. Taft's favorite stories is based on the school boy expression, "It'll be a cold day in August," when something improbable happens.

When Mr. Taft was inaugurated president, one of the worst blizzards in the capital's history blew up.

"Well, well," said the outgoing President Roosevelt, "this isn't a regular storm. As soon as I am out where I can do further harm to the constitution, it will cease."

"You're wrong, Theodora," said Mr. Taft. "It is my storm. I always said it would be a cold day when I got to be president."

NATION TO PAY FINAL TRIBUTE TO WM. HOWARD TAFT

tial campaign of 1912 when Mr. Taft received only eight electoral votes, he laughed heartily at Mrs. Taft's matter-of-fact advance acceptance of defeat. She had packed all the silverware in the summer White House at Beverly, Mass., and announced her intention of taking it home instead of to the White House.

"Fortunately, we are a family that laughs," Mrs. Taft wrote later. "Mr. Taft and the children managed to get some fun out of almost everything, and I and my matter-of-factness have afforded them lifelong amusement."

Mr. Taft's first serious illness came while he was governor-general of the Philippines. He had an abscess which necessitated two operations and a trip home to recuperate. During his long confinement Mr. Taft furnished a good example of his sunny disposition by reciting a verse from Kipling which he said fit his case exactly:

"Now it is not well for the white man
To hurry the Aryan brown,
For the white man riles and the Aryan smiles.

And it weareth the white man down.
And the end of the fight is a tombstone white

With the name of the late deceased,

And the epitaph dears: 'A fool lies

Who tried to hurry east."

Mr. Taft once made a trip to Rome from the Philippines to negotiate for some church land which the government bought. While in Rome, he wrote to his brother describing his formal interview with the pope and then added:

"He asked for the pleasure of shaking my hand, a privilege which I very graciously accorded him."

His best known faux pas, one which caused him to be assailed by labor in his presidential campaign, was made in 1907 when he returned to Washington and was asked by reporters what was to be done by the administration about the acute unemployment situation. Mr. Taft, then secretary of war, replied: "God knows." The remark was circulated widely by his opponents.

His famous break with Roosevelt, which led to the Bull Moose third party ticket in 1912, was a real and personal feud, and it was not until six years later that the famous "Will-Theodore" friendship was renewed. Shortly before this, a friend was discussing the situation at Washington with Mr. Taft.

"Yes," said he, "it almost makes my blood boil, but when I think what Roosevelt must think of what's going on, I get a good laugh."

A few years ago, a reporter dashed out to the Taft home after midnight, to check a rumor that the chief justice was dead. The youth rang the doorbell several times, then started to leave just as the night-capped head of the chief justice was stuck out of an upper window.

The reporter, somewhat abashed, told him of the rumor. Mr. Taft's hearty laugh was the response, then: "You go back and tell your city editor I'm going to live for a long time yet."

CONGRESS PAYS HOMAGE TO TAFT

Washington, March 10. — Congress interrupted its legislative duties today to pay homage to the memory of William Howard Taft, former president and chief justice of the United States who died at his home here last Saturday.

Neither house met today, nor was either to convene again until after Mr. Taft's body is laid in an Arlington grave tomorrow afternoon.

There was virtually no activity on capitol hill as no congressional committees were scheduled to sit today and the supreme court, which Mr.

Taft headed for such a long period, also was adjourned in his honor, and in honor of Associate Justice Edward Terry Sanford whose death preceded that of the former chief justice by only a few hours.

The senate lobby committee is to open tomorrow its investigation of charges that Senator Grundy, republican, Pennsylvania, allowed his office in the senate office building to be used as headquarters for the news bureau of the American Tariff League, of which he was vice president before his appointment to the senate.

The house judiciary committee will resume its hearings in bills to repeal or modify the 18th amendment Wednesday. Dry opponents of the bill will continue introduction of witnesses in refutation of supporting evidence offered earlier by wet proponents.

Gymnasium Meets All Tests

THE Brainerd high school gymnasium met all tests Saturday night when it housed the final play of the district tournament and an immense crowd, one of the biggest in the history of tournament play, saw Crosby-Ironton nose out its 27 to 24 victory after overtime play.

As on Friday evening, every contingency in conduct of the gymnasium was met. There was ample police and fire protection; clear, fresh air; splendid lighting; good seating arrangements; plenty of ushers; all exits manned and ready to relieve the pressure of the crowd when the game was over. Every exit worked perfectly. All steps were clear of ice. Every precaution was taken to prevent accidents and to guard against any trouble should partisans of the teams get too warmed up over the game.

The comfort of the players is looked after, too, in a most noticeable way. They have their shower facilities, locker room, dressing room, etc., and that is a big item in contributing to keeping a team fresh.

As Brainerd is the center of the district many a team and its champions would not mind driving a few additional miles if they were assured such accommodations as are offered by the Brainerd gymnasium.

Through Brainerd intervention prices for the final game were kept at a par with the Friday game. The district will not lose by such action, for it has helped to spread the merits of high school basketball and has brought school athletics to the attention of all.

Thanks are due the mayor of Brainerd, the police and fire departments, the district association, local and other schools and all the officers and various agencies which made such a success of the first district tournament held in Brainerd.

Be An Expert in Something

It is related in the Christian Science Monitor that a speaker at a recent vocational conference for boys brought home an important lesson in a very striking manner.

He announced that he wanted somebody to clean his sidewalks from snow, and that he would pay a dollar for the work. When he asked all who would take the job to raise their hands, five hundred responded.

"Unfortunately," said the speaker, "I have only one house, so the chances of any of you cleaning my sidewalks are one in five hundred. But I also need help in installing electric fixtures in accordance with the building regulations. What boy is qualified for that job?"

Only one hand was raised. "Well," the speaker then continued, "we seem to have a big army of snow shovelers, but only one lone general for my chandelier. I advise that more of you boys train yourselves for jobs where there is greater opportunity and perhaps better pay."

The situation in that hall is the situation in the world. One reason why there is much unemployment is that there are too many snow shovelers and too few expert mechanics.

The man who can do a special job as it should be done has at least five hundred times the chance of employment that the man who can only shovel snow or dirt.

Snow-shovel jobs and white-collar jobs are always overcrowded. But the world never has enough expert mechanics.

Surely there is no young man dumb enough to need to have the moral of all that pointed out to him.—Duluth Herald.

Surface Charm as Asset

MARGARET SANGSTER, writing in Smart Set Magazine, says that loyalty, diligence, intelligence and good humor are all fine virtues for the business girl or the young wife. They are necessary to make either job a success. But, so long as women marry men and men dominate business, the average girl's success in home or office will rest first on the surface charm of a smart frock, a trim ankle, a subtle perfume, a clever coiffure.

Efficiency, and steadfastness, and honesty of purpose, and diligence have held jobs for many young women. But surface attractiveness has secured jobs for a far greater number.

Real love has often grown into being because of a girl's sweetness of nature, and kindness, and good temper. But it took surface charm to capture the man's attention in the first place!

The girl who dresses her best is not necessarily profiting by her feminine appeal. Such a one is simply doing the logical thing by making herself attractive, just as men in business have done for centuries.

I saw a dancer not long ago whose whole act was ruined because her hands were red and chapped. Remember—if you are a secretary, for instance—that your hands are even more in evidence than hers.

We can't all be raving, tearing beauties, but we can make the best of what we have in the way of raw material. We can remember that shiny noses do not make for success, and that run-down heels can take away from the trimmest ankles.

Lower Admission Prices to State Fair

FIFTY cents is to be the admission price to the Minnesota State Fair this year. During the war the fee was seventy-five cents, which price has since been maintained.

The board of managers of the fair, desiring to bring the fair closer to the people, has voted to reduce the admission fee effective for this year's fair. Besides this reduction to adults, children under 12 years of age will be admitted free on each Saturday during the period of the fair.

This change in price schedule for the fair is of interest to all the people of the state and no doubt will bring the attendance to record breaking figures.

The state fair admissions should be like those of the Brainerd high school gymnasium. Large crowds and moderate prices are to be preferred to high prices and small crowds.

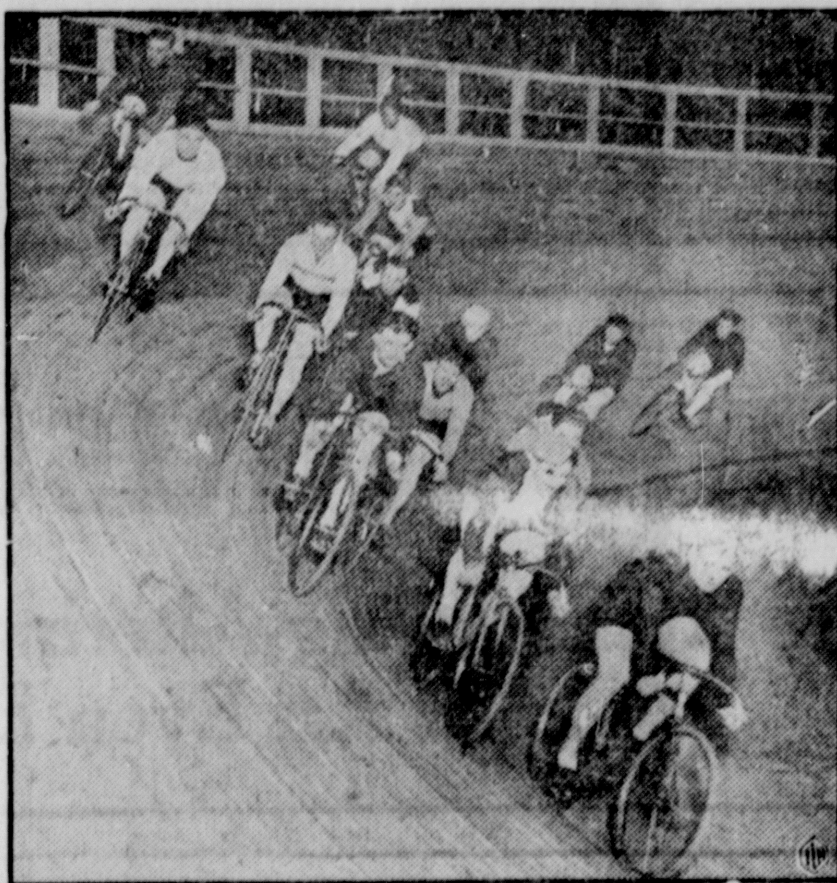

Byrd Expedition Nearing Home

BRAINERD, which has two men, Blackburn and McKinley, in the Byrd expedition, has followed with been attention every phase of the work done in the Antarctic region. The fact that Byrd and his men have now reached Dumedin, New Zealand, and are in good health after their long stay in the frigid zone, is greeted in the heartiest fashion.

The fact that New Zealand takes an interest in Byrd is because the work he has done in mapping and exploration is of practical benefit to all the world. Exploring the blind spots of the earth, locating land where hitherto only ice and snow was thought to reign, gathering meteorological data of the most valuable kind in the year's stay, all these are things which science makes use of the world over.

Queerest of Journeys

Entrants in the six-day bicycle race going around a turn on the big pine bowl as they start the second day of the six-day grind at Madison Square Garden, N. Y. C-I WINS DISTRICT CROWN FROM B. H. S. IN OVERTIME 27-24

WILL NOW ABLY
REPRESENT AREA
AT ST. CLOUD PLAY

GAME HERE SATURDAY, HOWEVER, WAS A MORAL VICTORY FOR BRAINERD

RATED AS UNDERDOGS, LOCALS CAME THROUGH TO PLAY ON A PAR WITH RANGE

Crosby-Ironton high school will be an able representative of this district in the regional tournament at St. Cloud Friday and Saturday of this week. The team is hoped to win the regional and make a good showing in the state tournament. In its quest for regional and state honors, Brainerd backs its neighborly county town to the limit.

Going into an overtime period, the Crosby-Ironton team won by the score of 27 to 24 at the Washington high school Saturday evening to win the 11th district tournament.

The game was a moral victory for Brainerd in that the locals, rated as underdogs, came through to play basketball on a par with Crosby-Ironton.

Sinking a free throw in the last five seconds of play, Hoffbauer made it possible for the team to tie Crosby-Ironton and go into a three-minute overtime play. The score at the close of the regular game was 22 to 22.

Krueger accounted for the first score in the overtime play. He shot the ball in from near the free throw line, being unguarded when he made the shot. Hoffbauer evened matters once more for the Brainerd high by scoring from a crouching position from the left forward position of the floor.

Petraborg broke the overtime tie by sinking one from close in and Krueger sunk the last basket of the game, a free throw, after Bernard Foster blocked him as he came under the basket.

Brainerd led Crosby-Ironton in the early part of the second quarter by the score of 12 to 3. Crosby then slowly came from behind to tie the score 12 to 12 in the second quarter. A final spurt on the part of both teams in that quarter and a basket by Hoffbauer just before the gun cracked brought the score to a 16 to 16 tie at the close of the first half.

The game was a nip and tuck battle throughout with odds favoring no team. Each team had its luck shots but on the whole each point was earned.

Hautala went out on four personals just before the close of the third quarter. It was his third time out on four personals during the four games of the tournament, an unusual matter, since Hautala is known throughout the district and to referees as being an exceptionally clean player.

Four men finished their high school basketball careers for Brainerd in a blaze of glory Saturday night. They were Art Hautala, Carol Guin, Bernard Foster and Hoffbauer.

Hautala and Guin played unexcelled basketball.

Close to 3,000 nervous, unstrung fans witnessed the game. On occasion a few fans displayed unfair tactics. One particularly offensive person in the west stands kept shouting, "You can't make it" when Hoffbauer attempted his last free throw.

Krueger, the Crosby-Ironton guard, came through to win for the Rangers. He found the hoop for three field goals and four free throws to lead in scoring for the evening.

Each team scored ten field goals. C-I won by sinking seven free throws out of 11, while Brainerd accounted for four out of 11 tries.

The range team played an effective stalling game in the final quarter. The players kept the ball on the outer rim of the Brainerd zone defense for a total of five minutes. Brainerd changed to a man to man defense to break up the stall.

Brainerd's zone defense worried the C-I boys throughout the entire encounter. The team had devised no strategy to meet it, expecting Brainerd to pull a man to man defense.

The play by account follows:

First Quarter

Krueger scored the first basket of the game on a rebound shot by Keeler. Olson fouled Hautala who scored one. Elmer Foster scored on a pass from Guin, making the score 3 to 2 for Brainerd. Crosby took time out. Bernard Foster scored on a pass out by E. Foster. Krueger fouled Guin, the latter missing. Guin scored on a follow-in shot on an attempt by Hautala. Crosby took its second time out with the score 7 to 2 for Brainerd. Hautala fouled John Perpitch who made one and missed one on his free throw attempts. Guin found the hoop on a free throw after Krueger had tripped him. Guin scored a field goal and made the score 10 to 3 for Brainerd on a pass from Hautala at the close of the first quarter.

Second Quarter

Joe Perpitch replaced Petraborg at center. E. Foster was called for hacking. Krueger missing the free throw. Schuety scored for Brainerd on a pass from Hautala, making the score 12 to 3 for Brainerd. Crosby then brought its long distance artillery into play. Keeler scored and Brainerd took time out. Olson charged Hautala who missed the free throw. Joe Perpitch scored for Crosby and Keeler sunk one from the side of the floor. Bernard Foster fouled Krueger who made two, bringing the score up to 12 to 11 for Brainerd. A double foul was called on E. Foster and Krueger. Foster missed and Krueger scored one, tying the count. Olson scored for Crosby and Hoffbauer was sent in for E. Foster. John Perpitch scored for Crosby, giving C-I the lead by 16 to 12. Guin (Continued on page 6)

Hail to Crosby-Ironton, basketball champions of the 11th district! We feel sure that every basketball fan in the 11th district is behind them in their quest for the state title. Of course every Brainerd basketball fan would have liked to have seen Brainerd win that final game Saturday night, and from a basketball standpoint they were Crosby-Ironton's equal in that last battle. But Crosby-Ironton won the game, which they should have, after their great record over the year's schedule.

Guard	Richardson	Aitkin
Guard	Randall (Captain)	Little Falls

Honorable Mention: Forwards, John Perpitch, Tom Perpitch, Crosby-Ironton; Hoffbauer, Schuety, E. Foster, Brainerd; Sullivan, Aitkin; R. Johnson, Wadena; Cavanaugh, Staples. Centers, Drellack, Little Falls; Joe Perpitch, Crosby-Ironton. Guards, Newman, Little Falls; Phillips, Probstie, Staples; B. Foster, Clausen, Brainerd.

The Forwards

Krueger, captain of the Crosby-Ironton squad who played a guard position this season, is named at one forward position on the all-district team. The big C-I boy has been one of the leading scorers on the range team throughout the season. He shoots well from about the foul circle and follows in his shots better than any other player in district. He scored many points on these follow in shots, his reach placing the ball in the net. He is really a natural forward instead of a guard.

Guin, captain of the Brainerd squad for the past two seasons, is named for the other forward post and is chosen captain of the honorary quintet. Guin, although he played center for Brainerd, would not have the necessary stamina to play center on the all-district quintet. Like Krueger, he is very good on close in shots and follows the ball under the basket well, getting many shots on rebounds from the bankboards. He is named captain of the quintet because he is the type of man that every coach longs for—one that plays basketball with his head as well as with his hands and feet. Guin's headwork in the closing minutes of play have won more than one game for Brainerd high school. He is the type of player that cares nothing for the crowds that watch the game. He plays basketball for the love of it, and always turned in his best games against strong opposition. Guin was a veritable demon on the floor in every one of the three games in which he met Crosby-Ironton during the season.

Konchal, Little Falls scoring ace, is named forward on the second team. He was unquestionably the most deceptive dribbler in the district and had a dead eye for the basket. If he had not been so successfully sacked by Hautala in the Little Falls-Brainerd tournament game he would have made a terrific bid for honors on the first all-district team. Keeler of Crosby is named at the other forward post on the second team. He was a forward that had a knack of dropping the ball in the basket when C-I needed the point most. He had a consistently good season.

E. Foster, of Brainerd, looked mighty good the first of the season, slumped during the middle of the season and showed up well in the tournament. Hoffbauer, who had an in and out early season record came back with a flash in the tournament. Schuety developed from a rather poor player at the beginning of the season into a dependable man.

The Perpitch brothers, John and Tom, the smallest men on the C-I squad, played consistently good ball all season. Sullivan of Aitkin was developed swiftly as the season closed and R. Johnson of Wadena shows promise. Cavanaugh of Staples was another one of those players that developed as the season progressed.

The Centers

Now that Guin has been moved to forward, Alden of Staples looks like the class of the centers in the district. He was the soul of the fighting Staples team, and as a scoring ace he had no equal in the district. He is a man that it would be impossible to keep off of any all-district team. Most players have their off nights, but Alden had mighty few of them during the past season.

Petraborg of Crosby-Ironton was another good center of the high-scoring variety. Crosby-Ironton had still another good center in Joe Perpitch. Drellack, the Little Falls "Stretch" Murphy, could easily outjump any center in the district and was a valuable man to the down-river quintet as far as getting possession of the ball at the tip-off was concerned. He was just fair on the tip-in shots. He was noticeably weak on free throws. He is awkward but with training he could become the most valuable center in the district. But at present after the tip-off he is not the class of Alden, Petraborg, Joe Perpitch or Guin.

The district had three very good centers in Alden, Petraborg and Guin.

The Guards

Hautala, Brainerd, is placed a floor guard on the all-district team. As an all-around basketball player he is without an equal in the district. Hautala looks equally good at either forward or floor guard. He has an exceptionally good eye for the basket, and can advance the ball down the floor with a great degree of skill. He is good at hitting the basket either from out on the floor or close in. When placed on guard duty against Konchal of Little Falls he did some almost unbelievable work in stopping the Little Falls ace. And he unquestionably was holding down Alden of Staples fairly well in the Staples-Brainerd game when he was taken from the game on account of fouls. Hautala had a deceptive shooting style that forced opposing players to foul him frequently and he had almost a dead-eye from the free throw line. He played a very clean type of basketball and during the regular season he was forced from a single game on account of fouls.

Olson, sandy-haired Crosby-Ironton guard, is placed at the back guard position on the first all-district team. He is a cool, heady basketball player that is a terror to opposing teams with his long, looping shots from the center of the floor that usually find the hoop with deadly accuracy. He seems to have a knack of doing the right thing at the right time. He can fake a little, dribble a little, and shoot well. He is deceptive, often faking a shot only to wheel and dribble past the opposition.

Randall of Little Falls is another crackjack defensive man. A sports writer would have to go a long way to find a scrappier player than Tony Randall; he is in there giving the best he has in him from the opening whistle until the final bark of the gun. Tony displays a fine brand of leadership and is placed at captain on the second honorary quintet. The district was blessed this year with three exceptionally good guards in Hautala, Olson and Randall.

Richardson of Aitkin developed swiftly as the season progressed. At the close of the season he advanced the ball up the floor in great style and had a fairly accurate eye for the hoop. He is placed at the other guard position on the second honorary five.

Newman of Little Falls was a consistently good guard all season, Phillips and Probst of Staples both developed in to far better guards as the season progressed. Phillips is good on long shots but he has a tendency to travel with the ball before shooting. Clausen of Brainerd in the course of the season developed from a raw recruit into a very dependable little player. B. Foster of Brainerd was the type of player that depended more on his headwork than his speed to stop opposing forwards. He was a fairly accurate shot from far out on the floor.

We Repeat Spit is a horrid word, but it is worse on the end of your cigar

... the war against Spitting is a crusade of decency... join it. Smoke CERTIFIED CREMO!

The man who spits in public places is no worse an offender against public decency than the workman who rolls cigars with dirty fingers and tips the ends with spit. And remember, more than half of all cigars made in this country are made by hand, and therefore subject to the risk of spit!

Take no chances... smoke Certified Cremo. Every tobacco leaf entering the clean, sunny Certified Cremo factories is scientifically treated by methods recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture. And its purity is safeguarded along every step of the way by amazing inventions that foil, wrap and tip the cigars without the possibility of spit!

Try a Certified Cremo—see how wonderfully good it is! Made of the choicest, tenderest leaves that the crop affords, we claim Certified Cremo's quality is tastier than that of any other cigar. Don't let its 5c price stand in your way. Your physician has in mind a cigar like Certified Cremo when he recommends a mild smoke in place of heavy brands.

Crush-proof... immaculate... foil-wrapped... Certified Cremo is the kind of cigar the late Vice-President Marshall undoubtedly was thinking of when he said, "What this country needs is a good 5c cigar!"

sunk a long shot from near center and Hoffbauer tied the score, 16 to 16, at the close of the half.

Third Quarter

Tom Perpich was sent in for Keeler. A double foul was called on Olson and Hautala, Hautala making his free throw and Olson missing, putting Brainerd ahead by 17 to 16. Guin fouled Tom Perpich who scored one. Hoffbauer was called for clipping and Joe Perpich failed to score. Krueger however, took the rebound and scored. Crosby started a stalling game with the score 19 to 17 in their favor, thus hoping to break up Brainerd's zone defense. Hautala fouled Tom Perpich who missed and John Perpich scored on the rebound play, making the score 21 to 17. Joe Perpich fouled Hoffbauer who missed. Krueger fouled Hoffbauer who missed, and Hautala fouled Joe Perpich who scored one. The foul put Hautala out of the game on four personals. The quarter closed with the score 22 to 17 in favor of C-I.

Fourth Quarter

Joe Perpich fouled Hoffbauer who missed. Crosby continued its stalling game and Clausen was sent in with instructions from Coach Kasch how to break up the stall. B. Foster replaced Clausen. Elmer Foster scored for Brainerd and Elmer scored again bringing the score up to 22 to 21 in favor of Crosby. Hoffbauer went down center, his throw making the hoop edge but popping out again. Joe Perpich fouled Hoffbauer who missed two. John Perpich fouled Hoffbauer who scored one in the last five seconds to tie the score 22 to 22 at the close of the regular time of play.

Overtime Period

Krueger, unguarded, scored from near the free throw line, and Hoffbauer scored from near the sideline to again even the score, 24 to 24. Petraborg scored for Crosby on a close-in shot and Krueger scored on a free throw when Bernard Foster was called for blocking. The game ended 27 to 24 in favor of Crosby.

Of course, Johnson is young and coming. Smarting over his inability to even knock Latzo down, Larry undoubtedly will "shoot the works" against Rosenbloom. He will try to do what Ace Hudkins, Leo Lonski, and other sluggers have failed completely to do, ie, stop the most unorthodox, elusive and tantalizing boxer since Harry Greb was in his prime. Slappers invariably fail against sluggers, but Rosenbloom seems to be the exception that proves the rule. Maxie takes all on, draws no color or other line, and to date is the outstanding phenomenon in his own or any other pugilistic class. He wins consistently.

GIVES MASTERFUL RECITAL SATURDAY

Nothing Immature About Technique of F. Gerald Smith

MUSICAL CLUB ARTIST

Before Concert, Delightful Luncheon is Served at Ransford Hotel

Although youthful in appearance, there was nothing immature about the technique or musical understanding of F. Gerald Smith, the pianist who played before the Musical Club at Elks' Temple last Saturday afternoon. From the first chords of Liszt's variations on a theme of Bach's, he gave a masterful performance. The fugue theme could be followed without difficulty and stood out as distinct from the brilliant ornamentation furnished by the variations. Bach stands in much the same relationship to music that Chaucer stands to literature. Each is recognized as the first great master in his line, but their style doesn't appeal to the modern audience, so this first number was received with complacency, but not with enthusiasm.

But with the first strains of the lovely adagio that opens Beethoven's Moonlight Sonata, the enthusiasm of the audience began to wax and it never waned. In a sentence, the adagio of this number demonstrated the artist's ability to make the piano sing, the allegretto demonstrated his accurate, clear-cut tones, and the Presto his skill in executing trills and rippling runs. The technical difficulties of the last movement which were accomplished with such ease and brilliancy, left the audience fairly gasping.

Then came the Chopin number with two dreamy nocturns, a waltz with strong tone-color and more rippling runs, closing with the famous black key Etude, which is as difficult as it is sounds, but tuneful and interesting. After these Chopin numbers came the climax of the program, the Liszt embroidered Shakespeare serenade of Schubert's, "Hark! Hark the Lark" and Schubert's "Erl King" which Liszt has ornamented with so many technical difficulties that it is as noted for these as for the beauty and brilliancy of the composition. In this, the chord tremolo which carries the melody was as light and delicate as the previous chord passages had been strong and accurate. The composition was inspired by Goethe's poem "Erlkonig" which is founded on an old Danish legend to the effect that to see night-elves is sure death. It represents a father riding his steed through the night, holding close his little son who recognizes the king of the elves and his train. The somber mystery of the night and superstitious fear are well blended in the poem and in the composition that it inspired. Goaded on by fear, the father rides fast and furiously, only to find his child dead in his arms at the end of his journey. This is probably Schubert's most famous song, which the wizard pianist and composer—Liszt—has made still more famous and difficult. In the closing bars of this number, F. Gerald Smith was so inspired that he seemed the incarnation of Liszt himself. Then came a number of poetic fantasies, inspired by country life, written by the young pianist. The titles of these were:

(a) A Ride in a One Horse Shay.

(b) Grove of Birch Trees.

(c) "Birds."

(d) Twilight, Evening Shadows Fall.

(e) Fire-flies.

The bumping Shay, the joyous song of birds and the fast flitting fire-flies were particularly realistic. The program closed with the always popular Rhapsody Hongroise No. 2, by Liszt. Although familiar, few in the audience had ever heard it played as F. Gerald Smith played it. It was truly rhapsodic performance and it sent his hearers into raptures.

His response to insistent applause was Chopin's Polonaise Militaire. Responding to tumultuous applause after his two Schubert-Liszt numbers, he gave a Chopin waltz.

Before this concert, which marks the high artistic mark of this year's program, a delightful luncheon was held at the Ransford hotel. There was music here, too, and some of it was of a high order. Miss Helen Kelly played two violin numbers that were warmly applauded and much appreciated.

Judge Kinder was the after dinner speaker on this occasion. He gave the "raison d'être" of the Crow Wing County Historical society, and told of its work. It was announced that the next (and last) luncheon would be held in the home economic rooms of the new high school, but when the date was announced it was found that it would come during the Easter vacation. So the ladies were advised to watch the papers to see whether or not it would be possible to hold it there. It is hoped that wherever this luncheon is held, there will be a larger number of towns of the county represented. Pequot seemed to hold the

SUTTON SCHOOL FEBRUARY REPORT

Honor Rolls for Month Announced; Bryce Kyllingstad Wins Attendance Record

The Sutton school report for February follows:

A honor roll—Elaine Anderson, Evelyn Eschenbacher, Donald Kyllingstad, Earl Olson, Kathryn Clawson, Mabel Jones, Margaret Anderson, Joseph Clawson, Rlice Lawrence Anderson, Geraldine Peterson, Bernice Dickson, Elmer Eschenbacher, Bernice Wheeler.

B honor roll—Everett Petersen, Harold Thienes, Edna Smoldt, Bryce Kyllingstad, Glenna Jones, Jane Clawson, Edward Anderson.

Those having perfect attendance for this month are:

Bernice Dickson, Elmer Eschenbacher, Mildred Eschenbacher, Evelyn Eschenbacher, Bryce Kyllingstad, Donald Kyllingstad, Richard Smoldt, Ronald Smoldt, Harold Thienes, Bernice Wheeler, Willis Wheeler, Floyd Shipman, Richard Shipman.

Elaine and Margaret Anderson and Carl Johnson missed only one day. This is fine boys and girls. But, let there be more of us on the perfect attendance list for March. Some of you have made a good start. Keep on, don't let Mother Nature keep you at home because of her breezy breezes which she will send forth from now on.

Those having a mark of one hundred in spelling for this month are:

Elaine Anderson, Evelyn Eschenbacher, Donald Kyllingstad, Mabel Jones, Mildred Eschenbacher, Alice Kyllingstad, Geraldine Petersen, Bernice Dickson, Bernice Wheeler, Elmer Eschenbacher, Willis Wheeler.

Quite a list! Let's make it bigger next time.

Those having a mark of one hundred in arithmetic for this month are: Margaret Anderson, Kathryn Clawson, Donald Kyllingstad, Evelyn Eschenbacher, Elaine Anderson.

Those having marks above 95 in arithmetic are:

Bernice Wheeler, Jane Clawson, Glenna Jones, Mildred Eschenbacher, Alice Kyllingstad, Harold Thienes, Everett Petersen, Joseph Clawson, Mabel Jones, Earl Olson.

Bryce Kyllingstad and his racer won the car race for perfect attendance by coming to school at 7:15 Tuesday morning. Three cheers for you, Bryce.

On February 28, the 4-H club held their second meeting. A small program was given at this meeting. They have not decided when and where they are going to hold their next meeting. They are still looking for a club leader. They would like to have someone in this district, who is interested in boys and girls club work, for their club leader. Has anyone any suggestions of whom that person might be.

The children bringing hot lunch to school every day for the month of February were the Anderson children, Eschenbacher children, Clawson children, heeler children, Shipman children, Johnson children, Jones children, Petersen, Kyllingstad, Earl Olson, Harold Thienes and Bernice Dickson.

We had a perfect record this time. Let's keep it up for this month and lunches very much indeed.

Roswald Wheeler has started in the spring primary class. Any more little folks who are planning on going to school next fall may start in the spring primary class now, so you will get a good start for next fall. You will hear from us again. Margaret Echley is the teacher.

banner for attendance on Saturday, as there were seven ladies present from Pequot. The total attendance was 45. Mrs. D. M. Clark presided.

LOWELL P. T. A. MEETS TOMORROW

Good Program Will be Given at Evening Meeting Starting at 8 O'clock

FATHERS URGED TO ATTEND

Refreshments to be Served After the Business Session

The meeting of the Lowell Parent Teachers Association to be held Tuesday, March 11 at 8 P. M. promises to be of sufficient importance and interest to expect a very good attendance, and the officers hereby extend a kind invitation to all members and friends. The parents of the children attending the Lowell school are requested to set aside one evening each month for the purpose of attending these P. T. A. meetings and get better acquainted with their neighbors and with the teachers who have the educational welfare of their boys and girls at heart. The men of Northeast Brainerd will kindly remember that these meetings are not only for mothers and teachers, but for the men as well and the chairman is very anxious to have more men attend.

Preceding the business meeting a program of entertainment will be rendered which was arranged by the committee consisting of Mrs. W. C. Rasch, Mrs. James Crust, Miss Austin and Miss Roman, as follows:

Solo—D. H. Fullerton, accompanied by Lorraine Morrison.

Violin solo—Miss Helen Kelly.

Talk—Mrs. J. H. Herbert.

Clarinet solo—Howard Hass, accompanied by Leslie Dryburgh.

Reading, "Biff Perkins Toboggan Slide"—Howard Zander.

This will be followed by the regular business meeting at the close of which everyone present will have an opportunity to partake of the fine refreshments which are being prepared by the committee consisting of Mrs. Wm. Webbing, Mrs. W. Smith, Mrs. Arthur Thon, and Mrs. Peter Dryburgh. There will be a silver offering for the lunch.

The teachers will be in their rooms at 7:30 to consult with any parents who care to come.

LOWER HIGHWAY COST

Tourists and Engineers Acclaim New Type of Road Surfacing Material

Heralded by highway engineers as the solution of the good roads problem and of unusual interest to tax payers because of its low initial and maintenance cost, is the new type oil road surfacing known as "Surface Mix." It is estimated that the annual charge against a "Surface Mix" road—initial cost and maintenance over a period of years—is only one-third that of concrete pavement and one-half that of gravel.

The engineering department of the White Eagle Oil Corporation has played an important part in adapting this new product to the climatic conditions of the Rocky Mountain and Middle Western states. Many states including North and South Dakota, Montana and Wyoming have already put their stamp of approval on this new type of road. Other states are rapidly following suit. Colorado now considers making a "Surface Mix" of Highway Number 40 all the way across the state.

Those states where "Surface Mix" highways are in use report that tourist traffic is taking favorably to the oiled smoothness of these new roads. "Surface Mix" has no resemblance to the old-fashioned oiled dirt road known throughout this community. It is an asphalt type pavement for which a liquid asphaltic oil is used.

The White Eagle Corporation has also perfected a stabilizing oil which builds up the foundation soil of the road bed and forms a solid base for the surface. This oil, eliminating the necessity for large gravel expenditures, will enable highway commissions to construct many more miles of roads than called for in their present plans and yet keep within their allotted budget.

"Surface Mix" produces an ideal type of highway that is bound to gain rapid popularity throughout the West," say highway engineers who regard "Surface Mix" as the logical method for literally lifting the highway traffic of the West "out of the mud."

GIVES MASTERFUL RECITAL SATURDAY

Nothing Immature About Technique of F. Gerald Smith

MUSICAL CLUB ARTIST

Before Concert, Delightful Luncheon is Served at Ransford Hotel

Although youthful in appearance, there was nothing immature about the technique or musical understanding of F. Gerald Smith, the pianist who played before the Musical Club at Elks' Temple last Saturday afternoon. From the first chords of Liszt's variations on a theme of Bach's, he gave a masterful performance. The fugue theme could be followed without difficulty and stood out as distinct from the brilliant ornamentation furnished by the variations. Bach stands in much the same relationship to music that Chaucer stands to literature. Each is recognized as the first great master in his line, but their style doesn't appeal to the modern audience, so this first number was received with complacency, but not with enthusiasm.

But with the first strains of the lovely adagio that opens Beethoven's Moonlight Sonata, the enthusiasm of the audience began to wax and it never waned. In a sentence, the adagio of this number demonstrated the artist's ability to make the piano sing, the allegretto demonstrated his accurate, clear-cut tones, and the Presto his skill in executing trills and rippling runs. The technical difficulties of the last movement which were accomplished with such ease and brilliancy, left the audience fairly gasping.

Then came the Chopin number with two dreamy nocturns, a waltz with strong tone-color and more rippling runs, closing with the famous black key Etude, which is as difficult as it sounds, but tuneful and interesting. After these Chopin numbers came the climax of the program, the Liszt embroidered Shakespear scene of Schubert's "Hark! Hark! the Lark!" and Schubert's "Erl King" which Liszt has ornamented with so many technical difficulties that it is as noted for these as for the beauty and brilliancy of the composition. In this, the chord tremolo which carries the melody was as light and delicate as the previous chord passages had been strong and accurate. The composition was inspired by Goethe's poem "Erlkönig" which is founded on an old Danish legend to the effect that to see night elves is sure death. It represents a father riding his steed through the night, holding close his little son who recognizes the king of the elves and his train. The somber mystery of the night and superstitious fear are well blended in the poem and in the composition that it inspired. Goaded on by fear, the father rides fast and furiously, only to find his child dead in his arms at the end of his journey. This is probably Schubert's most famous song, which the wizard pianist and composer—Liszt—has made still more famous and difficult. In the closing bars of this number, F. Gerald Smith was so inspired that he seemed the incarnation of Liszt himself. Then came a number of poetic fancies, inspired by country life, written by the young pianist. The titles of these were:

(a) A Ride in a One Horse Shay.
(b) Grove of Birch Trees.
(c) "Birds."
(d) Twilight, Evening Shadows Fall.
(e) Fire-flies.
The humming Shay, the joyous song of birds and the fast flitting fire-flies were particularly realistic.

The program closed with the always popular Rhapsody Hongroise No. 2, by Liszt. Although familiar, few in the audience had ever heard it played as F. Gerald Smith played it. It was truly rhapsodic performance and it sent his hearers into rhapsodies.

His response to insistent applause was Chopin's Polonaise Militaire. Responding to tumultuous applause after his two Schubert-Liszt numbers, he gave a Chopin waltz.

Before this concert, which marks the high artistic mark of this year's program, a delightful luncheon was held at the Ransford hotel. There was music here, too, and none of it was of a high order. Miss Helen Kelly played two violin numbers that were warmly applauded and much appreciated.

Judge Kinder was the after dinner speaker on this occasion. He gave the "raison d'être" of the Crow Wing County Historical society, and told of its work. It was announced that the next (and last) luncheon would be held in the home economic rooms of the new high school, but when the date was announced it was found that it would come during the Easter vacation. So the ladies were advised to watch the papers to see whether or not it would be possible to hold it there. It is hoped that wherever this luncheon is held, there will be a larger number of towns of the county represented. Pequot seemed to hold the

Honor Rolls for Month Announced; Bryce Kyllingstad Wins Attendance Record

The Sutton school report for February follows:

A honor roll—Elaine Anderson, Evelyn Eschenbacher, Donald Kyllingstad, Earl Olson, Kathryn Clawson, Mabel Jones, Margaret Anderson, Joseph Clawson, Alice Kyllingstad, Mildred Eschenbacher, Lawrence Anderson, Geraldine Peterson, Bernice Dickson, Elmer Eschenbacher, Bernice Wheeler.

B honor roll—Everett Petersen, Harold Thienes, Edna Smoldt, Bryce Kyllingstad, Glenna Jones, Jane Clawson, Edward Anderson.

Those having perfect attendance for this month are: Bernice Dickson, Elmer Eschenbacher, Mildred Eschenbacher, Evelyn Eschenbacher, Bryce Kyllingstad, Donald Kyllingstad, Richard Smoldt, Ronald Smoldt, Harold Thienes, Bernice Wheeler, Willis Wheeler, Floyd Shipman, Richard Shipman.

Elaine and Margaret Anderson and Carl Johnson missed only one day. This is fine boys and girls. But, there were more of us on the perfect attendance list for March. Some of you have made a good start. Keep on, don't let Mother Nature keep you at home because of her breezy breezes which she will send forth from now on.

Those having a mark of one hundred in spelling for this month are:

Elaine Anderson, Evelyn Eschenbacher, Donald Kyllingstad, Mabel Jones, Mildred Eschenbacher, Alice Kyllingstad, Geraldine Peterson, Bernice Dickson, Bernice Wheeler, Elmer Eschenbacher, Willis Wheeler.

Quite a list! Let's make it bigger next time.

Those having a mark of one hundred in arithmetic for this month are: Margaret Anderson, Kathryn Clawson, Donald Kyllingstad, Evelyn Eschenbacher, Elaine Anderson.

Those having marks above 95 in arithmetic are: Bernice Wheeler, Jane Clawson, Glenna Jones, Mildred Eschenbacher, Alice Kyllingstad, Harold Thienes, Everett Petersen, Joseph Clawson, Mabel Jones, Earl Olson.

Bryce Kyllingstad and his racer won the car race for perfect attendance by coming to school at 7:15 Tuesday morning. Three cheers for you, Bryce.

On February 28, the 4-H club held their second meeting. A small program was given at this meeting. They have not decided when and where they are going to hold their next meeting. They are still looking for a club leader. They would like to have someone in this district, who is interested in boys and girls club work, for their club leader. Has anyone any suggestions of whom that person might be.

The children bringing hot lunch to school every day for the month of February were the Anderson children, Eschenbacher children, Clawson children, heeler children, Shipman children, Johnson children, Jones children, Petersen, Kyllingstad, Earl Olson, Harold Thienes and Bernice Dickson.

We had a perfect record this time. Let's keep it up for this month and lunches very much indeed.

Roswald Wheeler has started in the spring primary class. Any more little folks who are planning on going to school next fall may start in the spring primary class now, so you will get a good start for next fall. You will hear from us again.

LOWELL P. T. A. MEETS TOMORROW

Good Program Will be Given at Evening Meeting Starting at 8 O'clock

FATHERS URGED TO ATTEND

Refreshments to be Served After the Business Session

The meeting of the Lowell Parent Teachers Association to be held Tuesday, March 11 at 8 P. M. promises to be of sufficient importance and interest to expect a very good attendance, and the officers hereby extend a kind invitation to all members and friends. The parents of the children attending the Lowell school are requested to set aside one evening each month for the purpose of attending these P. T. A. meetings and get better acquainted with their neighbors and with the teachers who have the educational welfare of their boys and girls at heart. The men of Northeast Brainerd will kindly remember that these meetings are not only for mothers and teachers, but for the men as well and the chairman is very anxious to have more men attend.

Preceding the business meeting a program of entertainment will be rendered which was arranged by the committee consisting of Mrs. W. C. Rasch, Mrs. James Crust, Miss Austin and Miss Romanoson, as follows:

Solo—D. H. Fullerton, accompanied by Lorraine Morrison.

Violin solo—Miss Helen Kelly.

Talk—Mrs. J. H. Herbert.

Clarinet solo—Howard Hass, accompanied by Leslie Dryburgh.

Reading, "Bliff Perkins Toboggan Slide"—Howard Zander.

This will be followed by the regular business meeting at the close of which everyone present will have an opportunity to partake of the fine refreshments which are being prepared by the committee consisting of Mrs. Wm. Webbing, Mrs. W. Smith, Mrs. Arthur Thon, and Mrs. Peter Dryburgh. There will be a silver offering for the lunch.

The teachers will be in their rooms at 7:30 to consult with any parents who care to come.

LOWER HIGHWAY COST

Tourists and Engineers Acclaim New Type of Road Surfacing Material

Heralded by highway engineers as the solution of the good roads problem and of unusual interest to tax payers because of its low initial and maintenance cost, is the new type oil road surfacing known as "Surface Mix." It is estimated that the annual charge against a "Surface Mix" road—initial cost and maintenance over a period of years—is only one-third that of concrete pavement and one-half that of gravel.

The engineering department of the White Eagle Oil Corporation has played an important part in adapting this new product to the climatic conditions of the Rocky Mountain and Middle Western states. Many states including North and South Dakota, Montana and Wyoming have already put their stamp of approval on this new type of road. Other states are rapidly following suit. Colorado now considers making a "Surface Mix" of Highway Number 40 all the way across the state.

Those states where "Surface Mix" highways are in use report that traffic is taking favorably to the oiled smoothness of these new roads. "Surface Mix" has no resemblance to the old-fashioned oiled dirt road known throughout this community. It is an asphalt type pavement for which a liquid asphaltic oil is used.

The White Eagle Corporation has also perfected a stabilizing oil which builds up the foundation soil of the road bed and forms a solid base for the surface. This oil eliminating the necessity for large gravel expenditures, will enable highway commissions to construct many more miles of roads than called for in their present plans and yet keep within their allotted budget.

"Surface Mix" produces an ideal type of highway that is bound to gain rapid popularity throughout the West," say highway engineers who regard "Surface Mix" as the logical method for literally lifting the highway traffic of the West "out of the mud."

"MASTER of MONEY" BY ROY VICKERS

CHAPTER XXVII.

If the sight of Roger had surprised Shirley, his first words astounded her.

"It's quite all right," he said assuringly. "We don't run the slightest risk by meeting, but it would be just as well not to enter any building together. If we go ahead we can take a bench in the park. We can talk there."

"Why have you come—why—what is there to talk about? Obviously you will not take my word about anything," faltered Shirley.

"Fine!" said Kelton and chuckled. It was the first time she had ever heard him chuckle. "But there's no need really, I'm pretty sure Brenaway is not having me watched. And we don't want to make out of the center of idle attention. Let us just talk about the weather until we're sure we're alone."

To Shirley his words were meaningless, though she knew they meant something. Roger's very presence was meaningless, his strange air of contentment when everything that was sane—believing her to be another man's mistress—he should be angry or at least contemptuous. Through sheer indignation she walked by his side while he hoped that she had had a pleasant journey and revealed that he himself had been on the same train.

He was giving her details of how he had managed to follow her taxi. The details made no impression, but the tone in which he recounted them made a deep impression. He had the air of waiting for her congratulations of his cleverness.

Presently they had turned to a quiet corner of the Square, and sat down.

"Roger, please stop talking!" she exclaimed. "I don't know whether you have been talking for mere talking's sake. But I'm still waiting to know why you have spoken to me."

He stopped short and stared at her.

"But, my dear girl—surely—it cannot be that you took my letter at its face value?"

There was no doubt about the genuineness of his surprise.

"I don't know what you mean. Your letter seemed perfectly clear. I know you have a good case legally—and I don't ask you to believe my statement that actually there was no reason at all why you should divorce me."

"But of course I believe there's no reason!" he almost shouted at her.

"Oh!" It was a tiny moan and he did not hear it. It was drawn from her by nothing other than the sudden dread that the new life that was opening up before her should be cut off. At that moment of self-revelation she could admit to herself that she did not want to be—"forgiven" by Roger, above all, did not want to resuscitate their married life.

"I still don't understand," she said firmly. "If you believe that there is nothing between Alan and me that there ought not to be—why are you bringing this action for divorce?"

He drew his fingertips across his forehead—it was his gesture of exasperation.

"I must confess, Shirley, that I thought you would take your cue from that letter. As it is, you have rather shaken me up. I don't know—that is, I'm not quite sure—how I stand. I had a touch of suspicion when Carter came back and said that your magneto was broken."

"Suspicion of what?" she asked desperately.

"That your spending the night there was an accident. I thought at first that it was the most brilliant piece of finesse imaginable. But in view of—"

"I understand now, thank you," snapped Shirley. "You need not go on explaining. You thought I had deliberately stayed the night in order to give you a chance to blackmail Alan by threatening divorce."

"My dear, you stress the word blackmail because you are out of temper, that's all. With a little carefulness you can prove that any form of pressure put upon one human being by another is a form of blackmail. But need we quarrel over a metaphysical subtlety?"

"We need not quarrel over anything, Roger. But—nor need we talk about anything. I was going to keep an appointment when you stopped me."

Her words produced an unexpected effect.

"Shirley!" His voice broke and he caught her convulsively by the arm. "Shirley, you aren't going to desert me? You won't let Brenaway—oh, you couldn't! You're not vengeful. I never dreamed for a moment you would fail to read between the lines of that letter. As you read it, I've insulted you and I'm most desperately sorry."

Shirley looked at him with a contempt not far removed from pity. She disengaged her arm.

"Roger, I've given you all the money I had. I can't do any more for you. I want the few things I had that were of any value and I will send for them. If I can help you in any way I would still do so, but I cannot. If I had another fifty thousand dollars or could borrow it, I would give it to you. As it is I can do nothing."

"But Brenaway—you don't mean to say he's going to let the action come into court? Don't you see he'll take steps to prevent it in his own way if he thinks you're indifferent. You must beg him not "Just a minute, Shirley. I feel as if mists were clearing and, it were, revealing fresh mist. When you stayed the night at the cottage you did not apparently expect me to take steps for a divorce. Why, then, did you stay the night at the cottage?"

Shirley hesitated. It would be easy enough to say that the magneto was broken and leave it at that. She could lie if she needed a—but it would have to be to a man like Alan, someone stronger than herself who was crushing her. She could not condescend to lie to Roger.

"I told you why I went to the cottage," she answered. "I went to pay your debts. Knowing that my nerve would probably fail, I smashed the magneto so that I could not get back in the car. I did not want the debt paid like that—that is all."

"He didn't want to be made co-responsible," said Kelton, with a smile that showed his teeth and made him look like an animal. "I know well enough what he wanted. He thought he had got me under

"But, my dear girl—surely—it cannot be that you took my letter at its face value?"

to let your name be dragged through the mire, then I can make terms with him—I'm not going to blackmail him—I don't want to extort anything from him—I only want safety—in all conscience it's little enough to ask."

"You needn't be so frightened, Roger," she said, really wishing that she could comfort him a little as well as save herself from the degrading spectacle of his fear.

"Alan isn't at all spiteful. He won't take any steps against you."

"That calmed him considerably. 'I don't want to parade my own misfortunes—and please don't think I'm nursing a grievance against you, Shirley,' he said. 'But you gave me the wrong cue by staying the night there. All this has upset me that I find it very difficult to concentrate my attention.' Shirley groaned at the oft repeated formula. 'You must give me a lead. Do you think the best thing would be to write to Brenaway and say that I have seen you and accepted your explanation and—withdraw the threat of an action?'"

Shirley felt as if her heart had missed a beat. Here was her crisis, she must tread with the utmost care. If she were to advise him to withdraw from the action in his present state of mind, he would almost certainly accept the advice.

On the other hand, she could never look Alan in the face again if at this stage of their relationship she were deliberately to strive for divorce.

"I can't advise you one way or the other about the action," she said shortly. "That is your own affair."

"You can at least tell me this, if you really wish to help me—does Brenaway intend to content himself with an ordinary defense in court?"

"No. He does not intend to defend it at all," she told him.

"Ah!" He clutched at his chin. "Why not?"

There was a short silence and then:

his thumb—the prince of commerce wanted a morganatic wife, he's going to have a fully legal wife when the decree is made absolute.

"I always suspected you two intended to fool me," he continued, his voice high-pitched and angry.

"But I'm not quite so brainless as you imagine. He can put me in prison tomorrow but he can't stop my carrying on with the action—and if he does put me in prison he'll declare to the world that he bought his wife."

"Thanks for our little talk, my dear. It's probably the last we shall ever have, and I feel sure you will be gratified to know that it has been of such assistance to me. I think you said you had an appointment."

He was walking away and she watched his retreating figure without the faintest flicker of emotion.

"He is vulgar at best. I wonder I have never recognized that."

She sighed with vast relief, then hurried off to see her lawyer.

It took Shirley two days to put her financial affairs in order. During that time she felt the first definite need of Alan's society.

But the lawyer had proved adequate and there was no point upon which she could legitimately ask Alan's advice. Business apart, it would be for him to seek her out if he wished to see her.

She was disappointed when the first day passed on and no message came from him, but was wholly convinced that it was in no sense a personal disappointment. She needed an antidote to her interview with Roger.

By the last post on the second day there came a letter in his handwriting.

"Dear Shirley," she read, "I have taken a furnished flat, as promised above, and if you are still interested in Macedonian Developments I should be glad to go into the question with you at any time you care to come—Alan."

"MASTER of MONEY"

BY ROY VICKERS

CHAPTER XXVII.

IF the sight of Roger had surprised Shirley, his first words astounded her.

"It's quite all right," he said reassuringly. "We don't run the slightest risk by meeting, but it would be just as well not to enter any building together. If we go ahead we can take a bench in the park. We can talk there."

"Why have you come—why—what is there to talk about? Obviously you will not take my word about anything," faltered Shirley.

"Fine!" said Kelton and chuckled. It was the first time she had ever heard him chuckle. "But there's no need really, I'm pretty sure Brennaway is not having me watched. And we don't want to make ourselves the centre of idle attention. Let us just talk about the weather until we're sure we're alone."

To Shirley his words were meaningless, though she knew they meant something. Roger's very presence was meaningless, his strange air of contentment when by everything that was said—his leaving her to be another man's mistress—he should be angry or at least contemptuous. Through sheer naivete she walked by his side while he hoped that she had had a pleasant journey and revealed that he himself had been on the same train.

He was giving her details of how he had managed to follow her taxi. The details made no impression, but the tone in which he recounted them made a deep impression. He had the air of waiting for her congratulations of his cleverness.

Presently they had turned to a quiet corner of the Square, and sat down.

"Roger, please stop talking!" she exclaimed. "I don't know whether you have been talking for mere talking's sake. But I'm still waiting to know why you have spoken to me."

He stopped short and stared at her.

"But, my dear girl—surely—it cannot be that you took my letter at its face value?"

There was no doubt about the genuineness of his surprise.

"I don't know what you mean. Your letter seemed perfectly clear. I know you have a good case legally—and I don't ask you to believe my statement that actually there was no reason at all why you should divorce me."

"But of course I believe there's no reason!" he almost shouted at her.

"Oh!" It was a tiny moan and he had not heard it. It was drawn from her by nothing other than the sudden dread that the new life that was opening up before her should be cut off. At that moment of self-revelation she could admit to herself that she did not want to be—"forgotten" by Roger, above all, did not want to renege on their married life.

"I still don't understand," she said firmly. "If you believe that there is nothing between Alan and me that there ought not to be—why are you bringing this action for divorce?"

He drew his fingertips across his forehead—it was his gesture of exasperation.

"I must confess, Shirley, that I thought you would take your cue from that letter. As it is, you have rather shaken me up. I don't know—that I, I'm not quite sure—how I stand. I had a touch of suspicion when Carter came back and said that your magneto was broken."

"Suspicion of what?" she asked desperately.

"That your spending the night there was an accident. I thought at first that it was the most brilliant piece of finesse imaginable. But in view of—"

"I understand now, thank you," snapped Shirley. "You need not go on explaining. You thought I had deliberately stayed the night in order to give you a chance to blackmail Alan by threatening divorce."

"My dear, you stress the word blackmail because you are out of temper, that's all. With a little carelessness you can prove that any form of pressure put upon one human being by another is a form of blackmail. But need we quarrel over a metaphysical subtlety?"

"We need not quarrel over anything, Roger. But—nor need we talk about anything. I was going to keep an appointment when you stopped me."

Her words produced an unexpected effect.

"Shirley!" His voice broke and he caught her convulsively by the arm. "Shirley, you aren't going to desert me? You won't let Brennaway—oh, you couldn't! You're not vengeful. I never dreamed for a moment you would fail to read between the lines of that letter. As you read it, I've insulted you and I'm most desperately sorry."

Shirley looked at him with a contempt not far removed from pity. She disengaged her arm.

"Roger, I've given you all the money I had. I can't do any more for you. I want the few things I had that were of any value and I will send for them. If I can help you in any way I would still do so, but I cannot. If I had another fifty thousand dollars or could borrow it, I would give it to you. As it is I can do nothing."

"But Brennaway—you don't mean to say he's going to let the action come into court? Don't you see he'll take steps to prevent it in his own way if he thinks you're indifferent. You must beg him not "Just a minute, Shirley. I feel as if mists were clearing and, as it were, revealing fresh mist. When you stayed the night at the cottage you did not apparently expect me to take steps for a divorce. Why, then, did you stay the night at the cottage?"

Shirley hesitated. It would be easy enough to say that the magneto was broken and leave it at that. She could lie if the need arose—but it would have to be to a man like Alan, someone stronger than herself who was crushing her. She could not condescend to lie to Roger.

"I told you why I went to the cottage," she answered. "I went to pay your debts. Knowing that my nerve would probably fail, I smashed the magneto so that I could not get back in the car. I did not want the debt paid like that—that is all."

"He didn't want to be made co-responsible," said Kelton, with a smile that showed his teeth and made him look like an animal. "I know well enough what he wanted. He thought he had got me under

"But, my dear girl—surely—it cannot be that you took my letter at its face value?"

to let your name be dragged through the mire, then I can make terms with him—I'm not going to blackmail him—I don't want to extort anything from him—I only want safety—in all conscience it's little enough to ask."

"You needn't be so frightened, Roger," she said, really wishing that she could comfort him a little as well as save herself from the degrading spectacle of his fear.

"Alan isn't at all spiteful. He won't take any steps against you."

"That calmed him considerably. 'I don't want to parade my own misfortunes—and please don't think I'm nursing a grievance against you, Shirley,' he said. 'But you gave me the wrong cue by staying the night there. All this has so upset me that I find it very difficult to concentrate my attention.' Shirley groaned at the oft repeated formula. 'You must give me a lead. Do you think the best thing would be to write to Brennaway and say that I have seen you and accepted your explanation—and withdraw the threat of an action?'"

Shirley felt as if her heart had missed a beat. Here was her crisis, she must tread with the utmost care. If she were to advise him to withdraw from the action in his present state of mind, he would almost certainly accept the advice.

On the other hand, she could never look Alan in the face again if at this stage of their relationship she were deliberately to strive for divorce.

"I can't advise you one way or the other about the action," she said shortly. "That is your own affair."

"You can at least tell me this, if you really wish to help me—does Brennaway intend to content himself with an ordinary defense in court?"

"No. He does not intend to defend it at all," she told him. "Ah!" He clutched at his chin. "Why not?"

There was a short silence and then:
